CURLSASK Welcomes Savanna Taylor as new Event Coordinator

Regina, SK - CURLSASK is pleased to announce the appointment of Savanna Taylor as the organization's new Event Coordinator.

In this role, Savanna will be responsible for the planning and execution of CURLSASK events, including provincial championships, hosting opportunities, and logistical support for affiliated clubs and partners. She will also support clubs and members across the province with Curling I/O, the online registration and management platform used widely throughout the curling community.

"Savanna brings great energy, professionalism, and attention to detail to the role," said Steve Turner, Executive Director of CURLSASK. "Her passion for sport and experience working with our team make her a natural fit to lead our events and support systems. We're excited to see the impact she'll have in this new position."

"I'm very excited to be stepping into my new role as Events Coordinator with CURLSASK! While working for the organization over the past two years in Youth Programming, I've had the privilege of supporting the development of young curlers and helping to grow the game from the grassroots level. Working with the youth in the province has been both inspiring and rewarding, and now, I'm looking forward to coordinating even more events that bring our curling community together, celebrate the sport we love, and showcase the talent and spirit that make Saskatchewan curling so special. Planning is well underway for the jam-packed season ahead of us and I can't wait to connect with more people across the province, and work with all of our host committees and clubs to complete another successful year of curling in the province!" said Savanna.

Savanna has already made meaningful contributions to CURLSASK through her past work with our youth programs and community initiatives. Her transition into the Event Coordinator role marks an exciting step forward in strengthening the delivery and experience of curling events across Saskatchewan.

Please join us in welcoming Savanna to her new role!
